PRICE, FIVE CENTS

The Spectator

Police Superintendent Smith thought there were 2,000 there. It was as good a guess as any. Certainly it exceeded any previous occasion. If you missed it, you lost a very great deal, and no doubt about it. Said Ed Haws, "Narberth is surely doing itself proud tonight. The man who would not be thrilled by this scene must have ice water in his veins."

First came the singing of "America." Burgess Frye started it on its way. He did it exceedingly well, as is always the case with Henry. Ralph Dunne then came to read the Declaration of Independence. His voice was amplified to carry to every part of the swarming field. The sturdy document was given to the multitude with all its life and vigor. The rendition should be an annual occurrence. Something is lost when some old customs fall into the discard. This is one which should not be spared. From the beginning, and until America started to get quite too many things on the fly, the reading of the Declaration was always the high-light of the day's observance. It was good to hear it again and repetition will never cause it to grow musty or old. We move for its adoption as a permanent feature of the Borough celebration.

Came then the fireworks and what a gorgeous spectacle they provided. It was generally agreed that never did we have a finer array. It would not be hard to make a brief for fire and thunder as the natural things with which to harken back the precious memories of long ago. Indubitably, they afforded a logical expression of the emotions and convictions of that huge concourse which assembled on our field last Monday night. Says you who does not know (because, perhaps, you weren't there), that's stretching a point to prove a case, and how can such a claim be made? Our only answer, friend, is that we were there, and things came to us, many things, sensitized, mayhaps, by the night air, and it would seem that we are happier with our birthright as a result of it all, and more convinced that this America will come through the present debacle with hearts gladder and colors flying, a simpler and a humbler and a more chastened people tho' we may be.

And who shall soon forget that interval when the pyrotechnics blazoned forth with Old Glory in its vivid hues, to be instantly greeted by the superb contralto voice of Louise Homer singing "The Star Spangled Banner," when, as one vast legion, the people forthwith arose, standing at rapt and affectionate attention as the stirring notes gripped hold of them, giving valid testimony (because men are alone in the dark) that patriotism is a joyful and vital thing in the land and that love of country is a highly tangible and blessed asset of this community. One can record very feelingly about this matter because one had rare opportunity to learn so much on that field on that night, after the sun had gone down and when there weren't so many stars.

Let us all agree that no mistake was made in providing this impressive occasion, for, after all, the cost was very little, less than a nickel for each of the participants who were edified, inspired and no doubt entertained, and, of course, the expense of it all was properly provided, as you will see from this last list of contributors which shall be published, to wit and as follows:

But that is not to say that we shall not be ringing the bells of a few leisurely fellows who have not as yet come across, as we do believe in conserving tradition, and it is tradition that they always contribute, and it is also tradition that we start each year's collection with money in the bank. Hence, you stalwart squad, please do do up, same as you always have, and so may anybody else who thought the evening was worth while and who can manage to spare a little bit towards its cost.

Special thanks are due and freely accorded, on behalf of the committee, to Eva Anderson, Harry A. Simpson, Arthur L. Cooke, Charles V. Noel and his valiant protective platoon, not by any means overlooking handsome Sergeant Gervin and the splendid corps of coppers who handled the tremendous crowd in such extraordinarily skillful fashion. Fred Walzer also helped a little.

Sixty-two Enrolled in Summer School

Instruction is Provided by Teachers From School of Education

MAY FORM FRENCH CLASS

The summer session of the Narberth Public School opened on Tuesday with an enrollment of 62 pupils.

The Eighth Grade includes 37 pupils, five of whom are from St. Margaret's Parochial School; the Seventh Grade, 15 pupils, three from St. Margaret's, and the Sixth Grade, 10 pupils, with one from St. Margaret's.

The faculty includes the following: Miss Miriam Craig, U. of P., 7th grade English and Spelling and 8th grade Latin and English; Miss Margaret Ellis, Randolph Macon, 7th grade History and 8th grade English; Miss Dorothy Kelley, Goucher, 7th grade Geography, 8th grade Science and 8th grade English; Miss Virginia Latshaw, Oberlin, 8th grade History, Literature and Latin; Miss Elizabeth Longshaw, U. of P., 6th grade English and History; Miss Dorothy Lex, U. of P., 7th and 8th grade Arithmetic; Miss Margaret Phillips, U. of P., 6th grade Geography.

Consideration is being given to the formation of a 9th grade French class. Any students interested should communicate with Mr. Drennen at the school office.

Sessions of the Summer School are held six days a week from 8.30 to 12.30. A study period during this period does away, to a large extent, with the necessity of home work.

Estimates are being received at the school office until Tuesday on school supplies, consisting of soaps, paper towels, floor oils and a floor cleaning machine.

4TH GAMES POSTPONED

By JOHN MULLIGAN
Plans for a busy week-end in baseball, during which three games were carded to be written into the Main Line League records, went haywire when Ol' Jupe Pluvius as usual decided to pay a visit Independence Day, and local diamond activities were at a standstill.

Only one game was played, that with the lowly Darby team on Saturday, and we imagine it would be a compliment to call it such since Gene Davis' "fence-busters" walloped Bru Tangye's tossers 12-0 and were not at all clubby with the visitors in the usual sense, hammering the offerings of two of their best pitchers for a total of 19 base hits.

This town, as well as the rest of the Line, was agog over the promised battle with Bryn Mawr. Danny Hemmer's Choctaws are trailing the Davises with a mere half-game and their tussle with Narberth would have decided who is to reign as first-half champion of the circuit. No definite date has been set for the playing of this one, but it's a pretty sure bet that they will lock horns Saturday at the Borough playground.

Gene Davis had planned to save Pitcher Bud Walker, his southpaw, for the Indian game and use Bill Reynolds in the morning against Jack Hart's Veterans, so it was left to diminutive Howard Graham to keep the locals in the running by side-tracking the Darby Duffers. Young Howie seemed to be at his best after a rest, allowing the Tangyemen only five hits and shutting them out in such easy form that nary a man reached third base until the ninth inning and even then the situation cropped up due to an error by George Babb at the hot corner on an easy pop. Graham struck out eight batsmen and allowed only one free ticket to first base.

Certainly the fans received little to talk about unless some of them are capable of becoming unduly excited over heavy slugging when the other team is so far behind that it isn't even a contest. The townsmen went to work on Pitcher Rea in their very first turn at bat, manufacturing five runs with a barrage of six hits that cast a warning shadow to the invaders as to what they could expect from their visit to the Borough. Rea later gave way to Orr in the fifth, but the latter also was ineffective.

Harry Francis, who is getting to be a "hitting fool" of late, and not confining his stickwork to singles, but instead including triples and home runs, set off the pre-Fourth-of-July fireworks with a single, and Bob Gilfillan, subbing at second due to Howdy Powell's side injury, duplicated before Walt MacGregor hit to second and Gilly was retired at the keystone. Even though Darby succeeded in nipping Harry Francis at third base later, the Narberthites continued the onslaught, as Charley Carroll, Cliff

J. Kenneth Keim Begins Practice as Veterinarian

J. Kenneth Keim, of 207 N. Narberth avenue, Narberth, who graduated June 22 from the Veterinary School of the University of Pennsylvania, commenced his practice this week.

Mr. Keim, who has lived in Narberth all his life, attended the Narberth Public School and Lower Merion High School, from which he was graduated in 1924. Prior to studying at Penn., he was employed in the accounting department of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He has been an active member of the Narberth Fire Company for the past five and one-half years.

Mooney, Dock Walker and Harry King smashed succeeding one-baggers, raising the total to a point where it was enough to walk off with the decision.

Gilfillan got hold of one in his old-time form in the next canto, slapping the ball for a long home run with one man aboard. Again it was Francis who reached base on his second bingle and Gilly sent the pellet soaring to the road in left-center on a drive that sounded like the lash of a whip. Thereafter Narberth added two in the fifth, one in the next session and a brace of the same in the eighth, making their triumph emphatic, all the while holding the enemy in the palm of their hands, as only man, Rea, could solve Graham for an extra base blow, a double.

As anybody can imagine by the final score, the game was sadly lacking in thrills. Cliff Mooney gave the fans their lone chance to clap hands, cheer, and what-not in the sixth with a sensational catch that was one of the best this reporter has witnessed this season. Orr sliced a line drive to Cliff's left which looked like a sure triple, or maybe homer, and the local center gardener galloped after the elusive pill like the wind. Oh he sped as it seemed to outdistance his pounding feet, then leaped high in the air and dragged it down with his gloved hand as the crowd chorused a rousing tribute.

Harry King shared batting honors with Notre Dame Harry Francis with three safeties for his afternoon's pastime, one of which was long enough to enable him to pull up at the keystone station. Harry has been showing a big improvement with the bludgeon lately. Doctor Alan Walker, the dentist, "filled" his hit column with a double in his collection of two, while the other Walker, Buddie, also had a two-bagger.

The box score of the game follows:

Infantile Paralysis Discovered in Boro

Two Cases, Small Children, Sent to Bryn Mawr Hospital by Health Board

RESPOND TO TREATMENT

Two cases of infantile paralysis, both young children from the Italian section in Narberth, have been sent to the isolation ward at Bryn Mawr Hospital by the Narberth Board of Health.

They are Albert C. Ettore, 4½ years, of 325 Woodbine avenue, and Mary Mfariani, 3½, of 316 Woodbine avenue. Mary was sent to the hospital last Sunday and Albert on June 27.

"Both cases," said Dr. George A. Sloan, president of the Borough Board of Health, "were discovered before actual paralysis had occurred and were sent to the hospital immediately for laboratory study. They are responding favorably to treatment and it is to be hoped that no paralysis will result."

The neighborhood is being informed of the existence of these cases, Dr. Sloan said, and warned to report any illness of children or adult members of the family to the family physician immediately.

"In early diagnosis and proper treatment lies the hope of recovery from this disease, which has resulted in the crippling of many children and adults for years or for life," he said.

A careful checkup of all contacts of the two children sent to the hospital has been made by the Health Officer of the Board, George B. Supplee, and no illness has been found among any of their playmates. There has been but one case of infantile paralysis in Narberth, prior to these, in the past seven years, Dr. Sloan stated.

No Need for Alarm

The announcement this week of the discovery of two cases of infantile paralysis in Narberth, while it should arouse citizens to the need of prompt reporting of any illness to the family physician, need not cause undue alarm despite the dread with which the disease is regarded.

Prompt action by the Narberth Board of Health in sending the cases to Bryn Mawr Hospital for confinement and isolation indicates the Borough body is on the job and alive to the dangers of contagion.

Investigation of playmates of the stricken children has been made and no illness has been discovered. It is to be hoped that the two cases which have cropped up will prove to be isolated examples of the disease which caused anxiety in the New York area last summer.

Dr. George A. Sloan, president of the Narberth Board of Health, stresses the fact that early diagnosis and proper treatment is essential in this disease which, despite its name, is not restricted to children.

For this reason it is important that any illness be reported immediately so that treatment can begin at once should further cases of this disease be discovered.

In the past when less was known about infantile paralysis, many children and adults too, have gone through life crippled as a result of it. Now it is less feared, IF IT IS DISCOVERED AND TREATED PROMPTLY.

Residents of the Main Line may rest assured that every possible precaution will be taken by health authorities to prevent any epidemic of this disease breaking out, but they must have the cooperation of all residents.

Thompson Elected Director of Business Progress Group

He retired from the U. G. I. in 1929 and since that time has been active in the affairs of the Corn Exchange Bank.

Shreds & Patches

A Matter of Intent

A public speaker recently misquoted that old definition of a gentleman. The speaker said that a gentleman is one who "never hurts the feelings of anyone else." The correct definition, as The Vagrant has always understood it, is "A gentleman is one who never unintentionally hurts the feelings of anyone else." The gentleman of the first definition would be merely a sentimentalist and the easy prey of every designing person who came his way. The gentleman of the second definition is a man, fully able to combat greed, cheapness, fraud and all of the other disgusting traits in which human nature so often clothes itself. It is wise and necessary frequently to hurt the feelings of another person and with deliberate intent to leave a sting in the wound which will ultimately penetrate to a brain that could not be reached in any other way.

Would-be Rulers

That definition of a gentleman, which envisages the possibility and the necessity of intentionally rebuking fellowmen, was written back in an earlier century when the gentlemanly role was more definitely and realistically recognized and lived. Those people who are talking today of the failure of democracy and of the desirability of a dictatorship undoubtedly esteem themselves as being qualified to belong to the ruling class with all that that implies.

Judging them solely by that old blood-and-iron definition of a gentleman, there are not enough truly upper-class people in America to dictate to the smallest of the states, let alone the whole nation. Democracy may have failed to elevate the masses here in America, but it certainly has succeeded in extinguishing the classes so far as any old-world conception of that term is concerned. It takes three generations to produce a gentleman, so The Vagrant has read. He would recommend, therefore, that the would-be dictators start their program now with the intention of having qualified individuals available to supplant democracy about the year 2022.

Pats or Kicks?

"Pats on the back are all right in prosperous times, but what we need now are a few more kicks in the pants," writes Gregory, moralizing to The Vagrant regarding the prevailing business inertia. It may be that young Gregory still retains a lively memory of the beneficial results which accrued to himself from the corporeal punishments of his youth, but to The Vagrant it seems that he is entirely wrong. If a pat on the back, when actually merited, was ever a good thing for a good man, now is the time when well directed patting can do the most good, says The Vagrant from the depths of his own long experience, which seems to have brought no surfeit of

Narberth Theatre Notes

Edna Ferber's epic novel of American womanhood, "So Big," is well worth seeing by the entire family in its movie version, starring Barbara Stanwyck, George Brent and Bette Davis. At the Narberth Theatre this Friday and Saturday.

Sophisticated and amusing is "Strangers in Love," with Fredric March, Kay Francis and Stuart Erwin. Added feature is "Lost Gods," result of eight years' research in ancient civilizations. Coming next Monday and Tuesday.

"The Miracle Man," powerful, stirring religious tale, brings Sylvia Sydney, Chester Morris and many other stars to Narberth next Wednesday and Thursday. Coming next weekend is "Girl Crazy," in which Wheeler and Woolsey are at their funniest.

At the Egyptian

Russia during the 1917 Revolution is presented by a cast headed by Miriam Hopkins and George Bancroft in "The World and the Flesh," at the Egyptian this Friday and Saturday nights. On the surrounding program are Thelma Todd and Zasu Pitts in a funny comedy, "On the Loose;" a Mickey Mouse cartoon, and a news reel of the Bala-Cynwyd Fourth of July celebration.

Saturday's matinee feature is Zane Grey's "Rainbow Trail."

Now that the Presidential campaign is under way, "Politics," exciting, dramatic and amusing Marie Dressler and Polly Moran cinema, is to be the Egyptian's timely presentation next Monday and Tuesday.

Feature for Wednesday and Thursday has not been announced, but will be of the usual Egyptian standard. Friday and Saturday of next week Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery will star in "Letty Lynton."

Prosperous times automatically provide pats in the most desirable form, that is, financially. The reverse is true in hard times when financial kicks are inescapable and most painful. The Vagrant seriously advises everyone, especially those who have authority over others, to seek opportunities to praise and encourage those who are doing good work or merely exhibiting a good spirit under the present difficulties. This sounds like a Pollyanna formula, but it is based on the fact that human nature can endure only a definite amount of punishment, varying greatly with different individuals, and large doses of it have already been applied to all by circumstances which are out of anyone's control.

BUSINESS BITS

Mr. B. G. Constantine, of the Goodwear Shoe Repair Shop, joined his family over the week-end, until Wednesday, at Ocean City, Maryland, where the Constantines are conducting, as in years past, two general stores. (This column mentioned two weeks ago that it was Ocean City Manor, New Jersey; there ain't no such animal.)

In his advertisement this week, Mr. Constantine calls attention to a distinctive shoe repair service for children, which includes altering of shoes to suit abnormal feet, and in many cases to correct such conditions. Specialists send work to him; many families in and around Narberth don't consult specialists, but rely entirely on him for orthopaedic work. During July he is offering to do children's repairs at special prices.

Don't forget the new three-cent postage rate.

Oak Hill Tract Sold
Samuel C. Wagner, Jr., has sold a plot of ground, 90 x 135 feet, in the Oak Hill tract, Bala-Cynwyd, belonging to Carl P. and O. Wimer Birkinbine to an undisclosed purchaser, who will improve the property with the construction of a Pennsylvania stone Colonial house from plans and specifications submitted by Durham & Irvine. The total consideration is in the neighborhood of $18,000.

19 Cases Reported
Nineteen new cases of communicable diseases, making a total of 67 now under quarantine, were reported for the week ending July 1 by the Health Officer of the Lower Merion Board of Health. The following cases were reported: 8 of whooping cough, 4 of mumps, 4 of chickenpox, 2 of scarlet fever, and one of measles.

Hurt by Torpedo
Miss Eleanor Sharp, special daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Sharp, of St. Paul's road, Ardmore, was treated at the Bryn Mawr Hospital on Monday for severe burns on the face received from a torpedo which exploded in her face.

Garden Club Meets Tuesday
The Penn Valley Garden Club will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Bruce Byall, Bryn Mawr avenue, Penn Valley, at 10.30 A. M., next Tuesday morning. There will be a picnic lunch and a walk through the woods will follow.
